

Twentieth-Century Global Perspectives

From the Archives of the Central Intelligence Agency

Quick Facts

Five digital resources provide fresh insight into many of the most-searched topics in libraries today

Unique primary sources for studying and teaching the most important historical events and movements of the last 100 years

Each resource is available individually, enabling libraries to tailor their collections to current teaching and research needs

Overview

This new family of digital resources for international studies provides global perspectives on many of today's most relevant research areas. Each of these unique collections offers new insight and unprecedented opportunities for teaching and scholarship in some of the most-searched topics in libraries today. Researchers are increasingly looking to 20th-century geopolitics to complement and inform a variety of disciplines, and these five collections from the Archives of the Central Intelligence Agency give libraries the opportunity to meet these current needs of their institutions. Each is comprised of primary source documents from around the world, including government publications, magazines, newspapers and transcribed television and radio broadcasts, all collected and translated by the Central Intelligence Agency between 1941 and 1996.

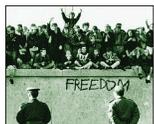

Apartheid: Global Perspectives, 1946-1996

Captures the international reaction to apartheid, as its effects reverberated throughout the African continent and around the world. This one-of-a-kind collection features translated news broadcasts and publications from both the people who experienced apartheid and those who watched and analyzed it.

American Race Relations: Global Perspectives, 1941-1996

Covers foreign reactions to America's struggles with racial justice, from the Jim Crow era to the Civil Rights movement and beyond. With thousands of commentaries on African American, Hispanic American, Asian American and Native American history, this collection provides new inroads to research topics.

The Cold War: Global Perspectives on East-West Tensions, 1945-1991

Covers such important events as post-World War II Jewish resettlement, South African apartheid, and Latin American migrations to the United States. It also covers controversial issues like ethnic friction, religious movements, border issues, the treatment of refugees and much more.

Immigrations, Migrations and Refugees: Global Perspectives, 1941-1996

Covers such important events as post-World War II Jewish resettlement, South African apartheid, and Latin American migrations to the United States. It also covers controversial issues like ethnic friction, religious movements, border issues, the treatment of refugees and much more.

Middle East and North Africa: Global Perspectives, 1957-1995

Offers fresh insight into one of the world's most complex, volatile and internationally significant regions. It is an indispensable resource for anyone seeking to understand the complex factors that gave rise to modern terrorist organizations as well as regional civil wars, revolutions, border issues and more.

UNLOCK HISTORY.

For more information on this and other Readex collections, call 800.762.8182, email sales@readex.com or visit www.readex.com

Readex
A Division of NewsBank